NATURE DESIGN STUDIO

INTRODUCTION

In today's fast-paced world, where concrete skylines and busy schedules have become part of everyday life, it's easy to lose our connection with nature. Yet, we believe that even the smallest touch of nature has the power to slow us down, bring us peace, and remind us to appreciate the world around us. As the founders of this company, we've always found ourselves drawn to the quiet beauty of natural spaces. Over the years, we've noticed something simple yet profound—people who surround themselves with plants, water, and living ecosystems often find moments of calm amidst the chaos of everyday life.

That realization became the foundation of everything we do.

Our passion is to bring a piece of nature into the spaces where you live, work, and unwind. Whether it's a beautifully crafted aquarium, a thriving terrarium, a thoughtfully designed garden, or a tranquil pond, every project is created with care, purpose, and a deep respect for the natural world. To us, nature isn't just something to look at—it's something to experience. Every stone, every piece of wood, every plant, and every living creature has a role in creating a balanced ecosystem that continues to grow and evolve with time.

At the end of the day, if our work helps someone slow down, appreciate nature, and smile a little more, we've done what we set out to do.

ABOUT US

Our story began with two different journeys, shaped by two different backgrounds, but guided by the same love for nature.

One of us (Jayanth H Jadhav) grew up around an aquarium store, spending countless hours watching fish and becoming fascinated by the underwater world. Yet, something always felt incomplete. Aquariums were often centred around the fish, while plants were treated almost as an addition rather than a part of the ecosystem.

That curiosity led to a simple thought:

Why can't an aquarium be more like nature? Why can't fish live amongst plants, just as they do in the wild?

As the years passed, that curiosity grew into a deeper passion for Nature. Along the way, we were introduced to ADA (Aqua Design Amano) and its philosophy of recreating the beauty and balance of nature underwater. What initially seemed like simply keeping plants and fish together became an entirely different way of understanding aquariums—one based on composition, balance, patience, and respect for nature.

At the same time, the other half of the story was unfolding somewhere else.

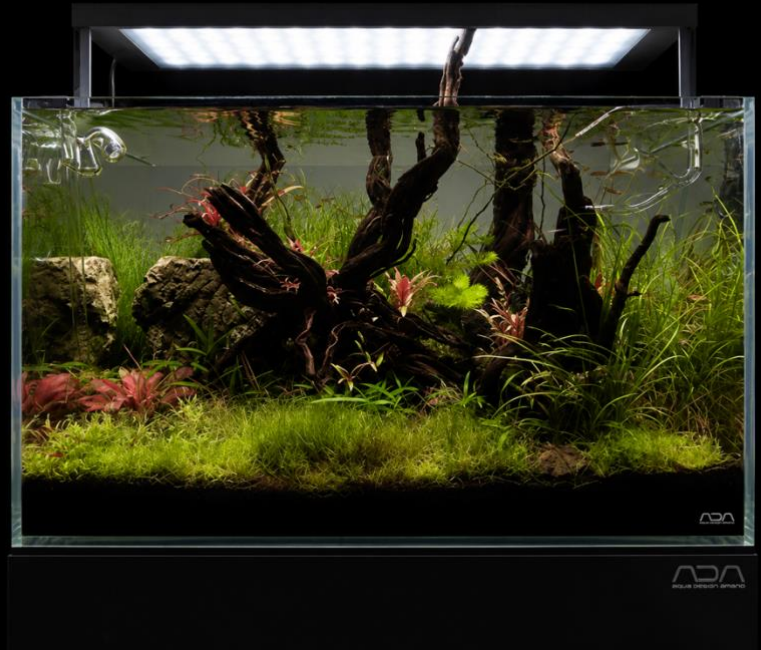

(Sai Ram) Coming from an artistic background, there was always a natural connection with creativity, composition, detail, and visual expression. At the same time, both of us developed a deeper appreciation for nature through our own experiences—exploring different natural spaces, spending time outdoors, and discovering the calm and beauty that nature brings.

While these two journeys were happening independently, neither of us knew that they were eventually going to lead us towards the same place.

As our individual interests in nature continued to grow, ADA and the world of Nature Aquarium became an important part of that journey. The opportunity to learn from the pioneers themselves eventually brought us to Japan, where we completed our Nature Aquarium training.

Japan became more than just a place to learn aquascaping.

We experienced a culture where nature seemed to be woven into everyday life. From traditional gardens and carefully shaped landscapes to the smallest details in ordinary spaces, there was a deep appreciation for simplicity, balance, and the natural world.

It was during this journey that our paths finally crossed.

We met through our shared interest in Nature Aquarium and soon discovered that, despite coming from very different backgrounds, we had remarkably similar ideas about what we wanted to create.

One brought a background in business and years of passion and experience in Nature Aquarium.

The other brought an artistic perspective and an instinct for creativity, composition, and design.

Different experiences. Different strengths. One shared vision.

We began imagining a place that went beyond just aquariums and aquascaping—a place where different forms of nature could come together.

That vision became the foundation for what we are building today.

Our aim is to create a nature store and design studio where nature can be experienced in many forms. From aquariums and aquascapes to terrariums, gardens, ponds, planted spaces, and the materials needed to create them, we want to make it easier for people to bring nature into their own lives.

Whether someone wants us to create an entire ecosystem for them or simply wants to build a little piece of nature themselves, we want to be a place where they can find the inspiration, materials, knowledge, and support to do it.

We don't want to be known simply as an aquarium store, a gardening store, or a plant store.

We want to create a place where our different experiences with nature come together—and where others can begin their own journey with it.

LET'S CREATE SOMETHING LIVING

For us, this is not simply about putting plants in a space or creating something that looks good in a photograph. It is about understanding the space, understanding the people who are going to live with it, and finding a way to bring nature into their everyday life.

Over the years, we have spent a lot of time learning, experimenting, travelling, observing nature, and understanding how different ecosystems work. That experience has taught us that there is no single way to bring nature into a space. Sometimes it can be a carefully designed aquarium, a small terrarium sitting on a desk, a garden that changes with the seasons, or a pond that slowly becomes its own little ecosystem.

What matters to us is that whatever we create feels natural to the space and feels right for the people who are going to experience it.

We want to make the process simple for our clients—from understanding what they have in mind, to designing and building it, and then helping them maintain it as it grows. We want the spaces we create to be something people enjoy living with, rather than something that becomes another responsibility in their already busy lives.

We are still at the beginning of our journey, but the idea behind what we do is something we have carried with us for years: to make nature a little more accessible, a little more personal, and a part of everyday life.

And that is what we hope to bring into every project we take on.

Have a space in mind?
We'd love to hear about it.
